

You open to the title area of the page, there is a click option for music to play in the top corner which I reccomended, and if it were my choice I'd make it auto playing which the code doesnt allow for unfortunately.

You are to navigate the site (scrolling) and view all the content within at your own leisure.

The aim is to give you sense of an excess overload of things happening, with lots of bright flashing colours, and gifs shifting around where your only control is to move around and witness the scenes.

